Marshall Favors Mobilizing Guard For Training Now

Army Chief of Staff Puts 'O. K.' With Few Minor Amendments to Bill for Training

Says It's Waste

Present Method Wasteful and Long Drawn Out, He Testifies

Washington, July 12 (AP)—A War Department official told the Senate military committee today that the Army would have 930,000 men in training by October 1 if Congress enacted a compulsory military training bill.

Col. H. L. Twaddle, the department's training expert, testified that this number would increase to 1,415,000 by April of next year. He estimated the cost of the training program at $1,000,000,000 the first year and about $750,000,000 for each succeeding year.

Favors Training

Washington, July 12 (AP)—General George C. Marshall said today he favored mobilizing the National Guard "immediately" for training.

The army chief of staff made the statement to the Senate military committee before which he endorsed, subject to some "minor" amendments, the Burke-Wadsworth bill for compulsory training on a selective basis of all male citizens 21 to 45.

In this connection he said he believed that at the start of any training program the National Guard, with its 230,000 men available on first mobilization, should be called up first.

Asked subsequently whether he desired to "mobilize the National Guard immediately," he replied affirmatively.

His questioner, Senator Hill (D-Ala.), suggested that it would be a matter of "justice to men in the Guard" to call them up for training.

"Most Unfair"

"I think it would be most unfair for them to be confronted with the possibility of being thrown haphazardly into service without an opportunity to prepare themselves," Marshall commented.

Explaining the Guard would muster 230,000 men on first mobilization, Marshall said the pending legislation would bring its strength to a total "just short of 400,000."

In any case, he said, Guard mobilization should be carried out at least four weeks before the proposed conscription program went into effect.

Assurances that officers and men of the National Guard were "ready and willing" to respond to a summons to active service were received, meanwhile by the war department.

The assurances were contained in a letter to Secretary Stimson from Brigadier General Walter A. (Continued on Page Seven)

Third French Republic Dies; Ruler, Publishes New 'Constitutional Act'

President Albert Le Brun Becomes 'Forgotten Man' of Nation; Parliament May Not Meet Except When Called by Petain; Referendum to Follow

Vichy, France, July 12 (AP)—Under the shadow of the swastika, aged Marshal Henry Philippe Petain took into his hands today the reins of an authoritarian France.

Publication in the official journal of a "constitutional act" over his own signature gave the 84-year-old "hero of Verdun" combined powers of president and premier and marked the death of the defeated third French republic.

President Albert Le Brun was a "forgotten man."

(The German wireless reported from Vichy that Le Brun had placed his resignation in Petain's hands.

(Petain, it said quoting a French communiqué, told the President he "intended to combine henceforth the chairmanship of the council of ministers (cabinet) with the office of the head of the French state in order to assume personal responsibility for the management of public affairs. . . ."

(Le Brun, it added, "with unselfishness for which the country will be grateful, submitted his resignation."

Today Petain theoretically held more power than any Frenchman since Napoleon III, but his right to govern as he pleases—at least until a new national assembly is formed—actually is limited by France's position as a conquered nation.

Another "constitutional act" he signed gives him legislative power "during this period of serious international tension and internal crises."

The remnants of the old parliament will remain through this transition period, but may not meet except at Petain's summons.

The old senate and chamber of deputies legislated themselves out of existence Tuesday and Wednesday by granting him full power to set up a new constitution which then will be submitted to a referendum.

Presumably all Frenchmen even in German occupied areas will be asked to vote under the plan, but apparently depended on Germany's decision.

It is not known yet whether Adolf Hitler will consider residents of Alsace-Lorraine—part of Germany before the World War—as "Frenchmen" with the right to vote in such a referendum.

To Move Capital

Although more than half of France is occupied by troops of conquering Germany, Petain showed his intention to extend at least his civil power over that region by his desire to move the capital from this famed health resort to Versailles.

What Petain and his triumvirate of advisers—Pierre Laval, General Maxime Weygand and Adrien Marquet—can make of their new France appeared to depend on how much support Berlin was willing to give.

They seemed particularly anxious to convince Germany and Italy that the new government is not just the old democracy temporarily masquerading under a totalitarian "front."

Petain drew the outlines of the new French system in a broadcast yesterday.

"International capitalism and international socialism are things of the past," he said.

The base of our new state must be work, the family and the fatherland."

The state will return to the provincial system of pre-republican France, he announced. The 33 former provinces will be re-established with governors to wield the local power which under the third republic was vested in prefects of 90 departments.

Britain Decides To Recognize Rule Of Haile Selassie

R. A. Butler Makes Anglo Announcement Which Is Reversal of Stand Taken in 1938

Tells of Contact

Commons Hears Selassie Has Been Reached and News Reported

London, July 12 (AP)—Great Britain has decided to recognize the government of Emperor Haile Selassie "as the lawful government of Ethiopia," R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, informed the House of Commons today.

This would be a direct reversal of Britain's action on November 16, 1938, in formally recognizing Italian sovereignty over conquered Ethiopia.

The deposed emperor has lived in England as a private citizen ever since.

Butler informed Commons that contact had now been made between the British government and Haile Selassie, whom he referred to as the "Emperor of Ethiopia," and that the Selassie government "will be recognized as the lawful government of Ethiopia and admitted to the full status of ally in the present war, with assurances that Ethiopia's independence will be assured when the war is won."

Furthermore, Butler said, British and "Ethiopian" forces are to coordinate "all activities likely to damage the enemy's effort in north and east Africa and in Abyssinia (Ethiopia)."

The British enemy in Africa is Italy, conqueror of Ethiopia in the war of 1935-36 and ruler of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, colonies lying just east of Ethiopia on the African east coast.

Butler said contact would be made "with Abeba Aragui, who is commanding Ethiopian forces in (Continued on Page 16)

Increasing Concern

This led to increasing concern in official quarters here that France may fall still further under German domination and possibly enable the Nazis to gain a foothold in her western hemisphere possessions without actually acquiring them.

Still another disturbing factor was the diplomatic pressure which Secretary Hull said Germany was putting on Latin American countries to prevent any action at Havana aimed directly or indirectly at the Reich.

Hull described this activity yesterday as an apparent species of intimidation of nations whose sovereignty, freedom of action and integrity were entitled to the fullest respect of other countries.

He made it clear that the Havana conference, called to strengthen the solidarity of the 21 American republics on economic and military defense, was a strictly American affair with which foreign powers had no conviction.

Interest appeared to be increasing in official circles in a proposal having the support of Brazil for establishment of some form of mandate or protection over the European-owned colonies for the duration of the war.

The total WPA enrollment on July 3 numbered 1,611,213, so that 2 per cent would be 32,244.

It would be comparatively simple, authorities explained, for Communists or Nazis to drop out rather than publicly proclaim their connections. Any WPA worker absent five days or more automatically is suspended.

Approximately 10,000 persons voluntarily left WPA rolls in both May and June. It is entirely possible, officials said, that a great number of these were Communists and Nazis.

Spot Welding Is New Device To Speed Plane Production

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, July 12—The Morrel Club will meet Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ruth Roosa.

The St. Peter's Guild met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Green.

Miss Gertrude Clear and mother, Mrs. John Clear, are spending the summer at their cottage in Stone Ridge.

Method Will Eliminate Use of Rivets and Will Add Strength to Vital Plane Sections

(One of the big problems in reaching a total of 50,000 warplanes to deserve the high standard of quality the American machine has established and yet find faster methods of production. Some of the steps taken in this direction are described in the following story by the aviation editor of the Special News Service of The Associated Press who is on a tour of the leading plane factories of the country.)

By DEVON FRANCIS

Associated Press Aviation Editor (Advance) Los Angeles, July 12—A method of "sewing" together the metal parts of today's complicated warplanes, which promises to accelerate manufacture as the nation drives for a production rate of 50,000 machines a year, is well beyond the experiment stage in our aircraft factories.

The sewing is an effective spot-welding process for the aluminum alloys which go into almost all modern warplanes. This does not mean that the aircraft plants will begin turning out machines by the wholesale next week or even next year. It means that the plants are overcoming some of the manufacturing "bottlenecks" now becoming evident as the government seeks to gear them to national defense needs in what has been termed a period of limited emergency.

The old method, which is the riveting together of metal planes by small armies of skilled and semi-skilled workmen is a production bottleneck which has grown up over a long period of years. Faster methods of fabricating did not lend themselves readily to the manufacture of planes in small lots of 100 or 200.

In Dry Ice Refrigerator

Each aluminum alloy rivet—there are 220,000 of them in a medium-weight bomber—is riveted and then put in a dry ice refrigerator. It is a characteristic of the metal that heating and sudden cooling will make it soft and workable. Brought from the refrigerator and tapped into a plane's fuselage, wings or control surfaces, the rivet expands and hardens.

The spot welds take the place of rivets. This art has taken time to develop.

Now the spotwelding of aluminum alloys is cutting down both manufacturing costs (by reducing the number of man-hours per plane) and the total period required to complete a plane. One of the new American dive-bombers, the Vought-Sikorsky shipboard fighter, has a fuselage completely spot-welded and wings partly spot-welded.

It took spot-welding a long time to arrive in the aircraft industry, even though it is an old process in other industries, because aluminum alloys weld badly or burn through unless the proper pressure is applied to the parts, and the amount and time of the electric current flow are precisely gauged.

The development of an electron-tube control for timing the current whipped the worst of the welding problems.

Other airplane manufacturing processes are being "cleaned up" in anticipation of a production of 50,000 planes a year. While the production of American aircraft for military, airline and private use probably never will attain the size and speed of automobile production, the airplane plants are borrowing boldly from Detroit to increase their efficiency.

Report Lettuce at Height of Season

Ithaca, N. Y., July 12—Although lettuce is on the market throughout the year only in spring and summer is the home-grown crop available to New York state consumers. Since reports from producing areas indicate an abundant supply of nearby lettuce, homemakers will want to make the best use of this nourishing green vegetable.

Here are some suggestions from the New York state college of home economics:

"When you buy head lettuce, see that it is fresh, crisp, well trimmed, firm, and without decay or blemishes. Its color should range from light green to white.

"Do not separate head lettuce for washing until it is to be used. Simply remove the outer leaves before storing it in the refrigerator. Leaf lettuce should be thoroughly washed and not stored for any length of time.

"The chief use of lettuce is as salad greens, in which it may be used in a variety of ways. The outside leaves of head or leaf lettuce shredded form an attractive foundation for an individual salad, or may be used to prepare one of the many varieties of salad bowls which are becoming so popular. If you wish lettuce leaf cups for your salad, cut the center core of the head and either let the head stand for awhile upside down in a bowl of cold water, or hold the head stem up, under running cold water. This will loosen the leaves so that they can be separated without breaking.

"When slightly wilted, lettuce may be cooked like spinach, and it is also good when shredded and cooked with green peas.

"The variety of arrangements and flavor combinations which may be used in a salad is almost without limit. Probably the most simple one is a slice or wedge of head lettuce served with Russian dressing. For this dressing, use equal quantities of mayonnaise and chili sauce; add some sugar if you like the sweet flavor this gives. If you have no chili sauce, use a mixture of your favorite relish, mayonnaise and tomato ketchup.

"The following recipe is for one of the more elaborate salads. If your family does not like the flavor of sardines, substitute any sea food."

Sardine Salad de Luxe
12 large sardines
1 tsp. of Worcestershire sauce
2 drops tabasco
1 cucumber, sliced thin
1/2 cup of French dressing
Lettuce leaves.

Make a paste of the sardines, sauce and tabasco, form it into balls and place in a nest of cucumber on lettuce leaves. Cover it with French dressing.

See Large Number At Nutrition Meet

Ithaca, N. Y., July 12—A large number of reservations have already been made for persons in ten nearby states, as well as from Canada and the District of Columbia, for the second nutrition conference at Cornell, July 15 to 17.

Purpose of the conference, which is sponsored jointly by the New York state departments of health, education, and social welfare at Albany and the state college of home economics at Ithaca, is to help persons who work with families and communities to get the latest information on human nourishment. Ways are sought, also, to coordinate community efforts in the quest for personal and public health.

The program deals with food values, methods of informing the public, the relation of household management and the family to good nourishment, and community problems.

States other than New York that will be represented at the parley are New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Delaware, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island, in addition to Ontario, Canada and Washington, D. C.

Representatives include public health nursing associations, school nurses, the Red Cross, county and city tuberculosis and public health committees, commercial food concerns, New York and Connecticut extension service agents and home bureau leaders, the farm security administration, state departments of health, social welfare, and education, Albany state teachers college, children's bureau, New York state board of education, home-making and health publications, high school homemaking teachers, visiting nurses' associations, community service society of New York city, dental hygienists, college instructors, the national youth administration, and the U. S. department of agriculture.

Child Needs Good Sleep

A growing child needs proper rest as much in the summer time as he does during the school year. Probably he needs more, because he's twice as active and his body demands the energy restoring values to be found only in sleep. Mothers whose children do not sleep well during summer months should check their sleeping equipment. If a mattress has an uneven surface, broken by bumps and hollows, or if a spring sags in the center, it is probable that it should be replaced.

Others in the car were Doris Schneider, Dorothy DeGraff and George Schneider all escaped injury except Miss Schneider who received a bad flesh wound on her arm in which three stitches had to be taken. The car was badly damaged and was towed to Tom Elliott's garage in town.

Frank M. Foster has returned home after receiving treatment in Vassar Hospital Poughkeepsie.

Republican Women's Unit Will Hold Conference

Edwin F. Jaekle, Republican state chairman; J. Russel Sprague, Republican national committeeman; Mrs. Ruth Pratt, national committeewoman; Speaker Oswald D. Miss Todd, member of the New York State Legislature from Westchester county, said she expects the conference, which will be held July 15 in the Chapel of Colgate University at Hamilton, N. Y., to be a "decided and constructive force in solidifying Republican sentiment in the State."

The conference will be preceded by a dinner meeting of the Council of New York State Republican Women, Inc., on Sunday night in Hamilton. The Council is composed of representatives from each county in the state.

The conference will open at 10 a. m. Monday (daylight saving time) with a regular meeting of New York State Republican Women, Inc. The meeting will be followed at 10:30 a. m. by a forum, "The ABC of Politics," with discussions to be led by Miss Ruth Miner, vice-chairman of the Albany County Republican Committee, and Miss Louise Gerry, Erie county vice-chairman. LEADERSHIP

There are two current theories of politics and government directly opposed to each other. One is that a leader should find out what the people want, and then lead them in that direction. The other is that the leader should have definite ideas himself as to what course should be followed, and try to persuade people to go along with him.

Obviously this is a difficult time for anyone in public life to represent the people, because the people themselves are confused. And because they are confused by the unfamiliar situations all about them, their leaders themselves are confused. Never, perhaps, in American history has it been so hard for leaders to know what to do and how to advise their followers.

But it is necessary, especially in these times, for our political parties and other important groups to have clear and confident leaders, who know what is going on and who have definite ideas of the way to handle pressing problems. There is no time to wait until confused public opinion clarifies itself by the slow process of a muddy reservoir.

The democracies that have fallen in Europe have fallen for lack of sound leadership. For us, leadership may be partisan or nonpartisan, it may come from one party or another, but it must be capable of unifying and directing the nation strongly, by our free American processes.

There are times in history, too, when it may matter less just what you do than that you do it honestly, confidently and strongly. The worst of all situations in a crisis is to be incapable of action.

BETTER RADIO FOR CHILDREN

Time, says a philosophical mother, cures everything, if you wait long enough. A recent survey of children's radio tastes, made by the United Parents' Association of New York City, suggests that time is taking care of those terrible gangster and horror dramas that have kept children's ears glued to the radio and parents' brows puckered with anxiety.

According to the survey, the gun-shooting and all the rest are still there on so-called children's programs, but the youngsters are tiring of them. Boys and girls increasingly regard them with disfavor and turn, of their own choice, to less blood-curdling entertainment.

The 60,000 children questioned ranged in age from kindergarten through the first year in high school. Many of them said they liked mystery and adventure broadcasts but not the most gruesome ones. Asked to make suggestions for programs they would like, they demanded a children's "Information Please," dramatizations of Bible stories, fairy tales and American history. They asked for news programs about children's activities and hobbies, travelogues about foreign countries, scientific and nature talks and more music and operettas.

How much of this attitude toward the radio has come as a natural reaction against programs of an exaggerated type and how much is the result of the work of schools and parents and museums and orchestras to interest children in better stuff, is hard to say. But the facts are most reassuring.

LATIN-AMERICAN OBSTACLE

We North Americans at last are coming to realize that we cannot sell to Central and South Americans unless we buy from them. This is especially true since the war is cutting off so much of their foreign markets.

There is an ideological angle to it, too. With general world commerce becoming so restricted, and with Nazi Germany trying to spread its own system, the German and Spanish-American systems of trade naturally drift together unless we supply the commercial goods and services needed.

Dr. Sumner H. Slichter, professor of business economics at Harvard, says:

"Our efforts to keep South America from passing into the German economic orbit will be successful only if we become a better customer of South American nations. The question is, are we sufficiently interested to give them preferential duty on their copper, or to give up our crazy sugar plan under which we encourage the raising of sugar in the temperate zone? You don't build up friendly relations with a country by selling to it. You must buy from it."

WANDERING RULERS

Royalty in the past has often gone visiting for special events—coronations, weddings, silver jubilees, and so on. But the present gathering of ex-rulers in London is anything but a happy party.

There are the Emperor Haile Selassie, last independent ruler of Ethiopia, Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of a republic called Czechoslovakia, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, King Taakon of Norway, the former president of Poland, King Zog of Albania with his wife and baby, three former French premiers, and some Belgian government leaders.

One wonders a little whether the whole crowd will pack up one of these days and take flight to the New World. Canada and the United States survived a thrilling royal visit a little more than a year ago, but this would be something quite different.

HIGH WAGES, LOW PRICES

We shall have to lower prices, and keep them low, says Thurman Arnold, head of anti-trust enforcement, if we hope to meet competition with the totalitarian countries. "We must drop down to solid earth from the cloud of artificially maintained price levels."

He insists that we cannot build up our national defense in "an internal economy in which the spending of billions of dollars causes dollar wages to go up and real wages to go down."

That last statement describes the situation in the last war.

It would seem miraculous to have a combination of high wages and low prices, in this period of war preparedness, so that we not only got more dollars but more living for every dollar. That's something like eating your cake and still having it.

NEW EXERCISE TREATMENT FOR CROSS EYE

From time to time physicians are asked by parents who have a child with cross eye, about the use of exercises to straighten the eye rather than have the child undergo a surgical operation. The physician points out that while exercise will help to some extent, it takes a long time, perhaps months or years of exercise to obtain any results and complete correction is usually impossible with exercise alone.

A great step forward in the correction of cross eye, by exercise, is reported by Dr. George Kent in Hygiene, the health magazine. It is called orthoptics, meaning straightening of the eyes, just as orthopedics means straightening the feet.

The new system or science is based on the principle of the stereoscope which was used years ago to look at photographs which gave depth or distance instead of just the flat picture.

This device combines the images of two similar pictures of an object, divided into two parts, the halves enclosed in black barrels, like binoculars, but operated independently of each other. With this device the physician or operator can race the eyes in circles, swing them from side to side, measure the amount the cross eye is out of line with the other eye, and train the eyes to work together in a straight line.

With the patient seated before the machine, slides are inserted, a different one for each barrel of the instrument. One might be a bird, the other a cage. If your eyes are normal, you look in and see the bird in the cage. But if you are cross-eyed and the two movable barrels are separated a normal eye, you will see the bird or cage only.

The normal pair of eyes works as a team. The eyes are really two cameras which shoot or work together producing two clear images which overlap one another. In cross eye, one of the eyes (cameras) is turned at an angle and does not see because it does not hit or focus at the right spot at back of the eye. The object of the machine is to train the cross eye to focus on the right spot and so work accurately with the good or straight eye.

The average number of treatments required is two each week for six months.

In the majority of cases, surgery is required for a complete cure. The exercise given before and after the operation, greatly increases the number of cures following operation.

American Public Has Awakened Great Deal in Last 63 Days

But Production Still Lags

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1940)

Washington, July 12—Sixty-three days have elapsed since the Nazis began their total war by invading Belgium and Holland, and in that period the American people have been awakened to the need for an immense national defense program, but there have developed delays which are of such far-reaching importance that it becomes a public duty to call attention to them.

During the 63 days, scarcely a week has gone by that the administration has not made spectacular and dramatic announcements about the billings that are to be "authorized" for defense weapons, but the simple truth is that 63 days have passed without getting America into the swing of production so vital to present day conditions. "Authorizations" do not mean production.

In normal times a loss of 63 days is not important, but in less than that number of days Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France have been conquered and the whole course of contemporaneous history has been changed. Can America afford to lose the time that has been spent thus far in Washington bickering and debating details, discussing compromises, arguing for this or that policy of New Dealism and generally introducing a web of red tape, the like of which has been witnessed only in the democracies of France and Britain when they began wrestling with the same defense problem as it related to industrial production?

Has Washington learned the lesson which has been so painfully administered in Europe? One would think so, but the truth is Washington's defense program has been bogged down for several weeks. Little has been said in the press in the hope that some coordination and speed would come soon. The whole picture has been befogged by the shrewd move of the administration in bringing prominent industrialists to Washington so as to give the public confidence in the readiness of the government to give business men a chance to function.

Now these business men will say right off the bat that they are getting excellent cooperation from the President, and it's true. The trouble is not in getting done the things which the advisory commission on national defense wants done. The difficulty is in finding out what the army and navy respectively really want and when they want it, and then finding out what industry and business can do to put the weapons into the hands of the army and navy at the earliest possible moment.

It is government red tape which is slowing down the defense machine, and by government red tape is meant the whole series of completed and dedicated.

The present edifice on Wurts street was dedicated on May 26, 1876, by Archbishop—later Cardinal—McClory.

It was on October 2 of 1908, that the Eagle Hotel on Main street, which had been conducted for many years by Alonso E. and James S. Winnie, was purchased by Charles A. Hungerford of Waterbury, who planned to take possession on January 20, 1909.

Mr. Hungerford conducted the hotel for several years before he finally disposed of the property. At the time he purchased the hotel it was owned by the Benjamin J. Winnie estate, of which Levan J. Winnie was executor.

Work of demolishing this famous old hotel, which was purchased by Ulster county some months ago, is now underway.

Four lives were lost on October 21 of that year, when fire destroyed the steamer New York of the Hudson River Day Line, which was berthed at the Marvel shipyard in Newburgh. At the time the fire broke out there were 25 negroes asleep on the boat and all escaped but the four men. The fire caused a loss of more than $500,000.

The four dead in the fire were Isaac Jenkins, James Jones, Alex Bran and James Matthews.

That same night, Ward Hill Lamon went to the printers of convention hall tickets and all night long a corps of young men wrote the names of Lincoln bucks on.

The next day, rooters stomped the streets and shouted for "Old Abe" and "The Rail Splitter." The Lincolnites took over the Wigwam, the huge old rough lumber barn where the convention was to be held, and when the Seward shouters arrived there were no seats.

CREEK LOCKS

Creek Locks, July 12—Mr. and Mrs. Burkirk, who has been living at Mrs. Hawley's place have moved to Cottrell.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller and her two children from New York city, are up in their summer home.

Miss Nellie Regen, from Kingsbridge is spending her vacation at her brother's home.

The Rondout house, has a number of boarders.

Mrs. E. Dession made a shopping trip to Kingston on Wednesday.

Mr. Hussman, Mrs. Miller and the boys of Mrs. Jaquin went to the Broadway show on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson from Staten Island called recently on Mr. and Mrs. Carmical.

Population: One

Milligan, Ore. (P.—W. A. Rahn is proud of his place in the 1940 census, since he's the whole population of this town. He is postmaster, notary public, storekeeper and service-station operator. A sign proclaims the name of Milligan and its population as one.

The next day, rooters stomped the streets and shouted for "Old Abe" and "The Rail Splitter." The Lincolnites took over the Wigwam, the huge old rough lumber barn where the convention was to be held, and when the Seward shouters arrived there were no seats.

Help From Galleries

As the voting started, Lincoln had barely a hundred votes but every one that was cast for him brought such a din from the galleries that a thousand steam whistles, ten acres of hotel gongs, a tribe of Comanches might have mingled in the scene unnoticed."

On the third ballot, Lincoln had gone from nothing to a near majority. What he needed, the Ohio delegation provided, and the nomination was won.

So short a time had he been in the race, so little was he known as a possibility, that when Lincoln nominated him, the galleries cheered him with such a din from the galleries that a thousand steam whistles, ten acres of hotel gongs, a tribe of Comanches might have mingled in the scene unnoticed."

But when the delegates assembled things began to happen. "Old Abe" the railsplitter had nothing but Illinois on his side to start with, but before things could really warm up, Pennsylvania, whose candidate was favorite-son Simon Cameron, and Indiana had been brought into line.

The night before the balloting, the Lincoln crowd gave their first hint of a blitzkrieg. One of their henchmen took the floor and made a speech that lasted until after midnight, eliminating the possibility of the Seward speeches that were scheduled.

When it was all over Lincoln (and Willkie) pointed out that a dark horse has the advantage of having made no commitments and not owing anybody anything. Of course, that wasn't exactly true for Lincoln, and it probably won't be for Willkie, either.

Model Airplanes Shown to Kiwanis

Beatty and Mellert Show
Planes They've Built

Members of Kingston Kiwanis Club, who have become quite air-minded of late, having recently sponsored flying lessons for a number of Kingston High School students, had as guests Thursday at their weekly luncheon meeting two Kingston young men who have been building large-sized model airplanes.

They were Harry Beatty, Jr., and Robert Mellert and the visitors not only brought with them and demonstrated the planes which they had assembled, but explained to the Kiwanians details of their construction.

The models were of good size, with six and seven feet wing-spread respectively and complete with motors which run on batteries. They will remain in the air for a considerable period of time, the length depending upon air conditions, the motor shutting off after a minute or so, following which the plane continues to glide. As a rule it lands undamaged if it has been properly adjusted at the start. As to the labor involved in assembling a plane similar to those shown Harry Beatty said that he probably spent around 100 hours putting his model together.

Fred VanDeusen also appeared on the program Thursday. Fred has added several new tricks to his collection and after he had shown them to Kiwanians it was generally agreed that they were crackers.

President Pratt Boice read a letter from the New York Kiwanis Club urging local members to visit New York on July 24, Kiwanis Day at the World's Fair. Mark A. Smith of Thomaston, Ga., international president and William A. Godsen, New York state governor, are among prominent Kiwanians who will be present.

Joseph Swanson of New York was a visitor Thursday.

No Scientific Reason for It

Why Are Cows Milked From Right-Hand Side?

Ithaca, N. Y., July 12.—A standard custom among dairymen is to milk cows from the right-hand side. In fact, it's taken for granted, and many a novice has had his milk pail kicked over when he tried to coax an experienced bossy from the left side.

A recent query, however, to the New York state college of agriculture read: "Please tell me whether there is any scientific or practical reason for milking cows from the right side. I assume I am right in thinking this is a universal custom."

Here's the answer from Professor W. T. Crandall of the department of animal husbandry:

"There is no scientific reason for milking on the right-hand side, nor any practical reason unless it is that a few cows have become used to being milked from that side and make trouble when the usual procedure is changed. Calves nurse from both sides as convenient."

"On occasions when cows for one reason or another are milked partially or altogether from the left side, no effect on production is noted unless the cow used to right-side milking resents a change from habitual practice. Most persons, too, are right-handed which probably makes it easier for them on that side."

Now you might ask horsemen and equestrians why horses are mounted from the left side.

Inexperienced dressmakers can save time and trouble by marking, before it is cut, each piece of a pattern with its correct name, such as front skirt or back blouse.

In Democratic Spotlight

JOHN NANCE GARNER

Born in a log cabin, November 22, 1868, in Red River County, Texas, John Nance Garner rode range, helped his pa with chores, walked three miles to and from school. Admitted to the bar at 22, Garner opened a law office in Clarksville, Tex., whence he soon moved to his present home at Uvalde. While campaigning for county judge, he met Ettie Rheiher. She has been his wife and secretary since 1896 and helps manage land and banking interests that have made him a millionaire. As a state legislator, Garner proposed splitting Texas into five states to enhance the region's influence nationally, but the idea never caught on. Elected to Congress, he passed his first eight years in Washington without making a single speech. In 1931, nevertheless, he became Speaker of the House, and the following year he became Vice-President. Set in his country ways, "Cactus Jack" likes to get to bed by 9 p. m. and, next morning, do a half day's work before most congressmen have reached their desks. He's an ardent baseball fan and likes to go hunting and fishing between sessions of Congress.

Mrs. Cordell Hull Is a Diplomat, Too

Her Specialties Are Tact, Poise and Keeping State Secrets

By SIGRID ARNE

AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—At a recent reception Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the secretary of state, found herself meeting and re-meeting a very old friend. They spoke the first time, didn't the next two.

As they passed each other a fourth time an over-helpful woman jumped up and said: "You know Mrs. Hull, don't you?" "Hull? Hull?" cogitated the other woman. "That name seems familiar. He was a congressman, wasn't he?"

Mrs. Hull picked up the game. She replied: "He was, but he's not running in 1940."

That was her dictum right through the last year as president-makers eyed the tall, handsome, white-haired figure of her husband.

Mrs. Hull was warned that all her worrying about his health would hurt his candidacy. She just smiled as though she hoped it would.

She is one woman who feels she's had her fill of honors, and would like the sunset years to be peaceful and full of old friends.

She Can Keep a Secret

Her husband's welfare has been her prime duty and pleasure since she married him 20 years ago. He was a member of the House from Tennessee. She was a visitor to Washington from Staunton, Va.

She has been the perfect wife of a public man. Persons on both sides of the political fence say that.

There have been few world-shaking events in recent years she hasn't known about as quick as the wireless could tap them out.

But never once, by innuendo or fumble, has she let drop a secret, nor given a hint she knew more than the surface information.

Frances Hull

Of her age: "It's 50-odd . . . I don't know exactly" overdone geniality and first names, no one would think of calling her "Frances."

Throughout her married life she has kept scrap books of her husband's doings. The 50-odd volumes are neatly filed on shelves in their study, where his large work table elbows up to her little mahogany desk. She hopes some time to go over the volumes and write a book.

Each day she clears her desk that day's mail. And she does it herself in long hand.

Her phone rings. She answers it quietly with, "This is Frances Hull." Curiously, in this town of

Foresees Changed Highway Systems

One Reason Is to Meet Needs of National Defense

Ithaca, N. Y., July 12—A greatly changed highway system in New York state, brought about by needs for national defense and by the abandonment of farms in many rural areas, was envisioned by Clarence L. Chamberlain, county attorney of Broome county, in a recent talk to town and county highway superintendents at Corning.

"Our present highway system," he said, "has been laid out without any thought of military use. In the future we may receive some of our instructions from the War Department. Furthermore, in many areas the rural population is rapidly disappearing. Once-active roads now serve only one or two farms, and it is no longer economical to keep such roads in repair." Mr. Chamberlain also discussed the legal phases of abandoning roads and bridges.

W. L. Malcolm, director of the school of civil engineering at Cornell, told about the use of local material in road building. "We should give more thought to economy in building roads," he declared. "All kinds of local material that may have a part in road construction should be studied and used if possible." As an example he cited effective guard rails that can be built from a variety of materials.

"In some parts of the state," he said, "guard rails of cedar logs are less expensive than concrete posts, because the logs are on the spot, whereas the concrete has to be hauled from a distance." The same principle applies, he indicated, to sub-grade material, material for bridges and culverts, and other phases of construction.

Collection of Pipes

Lincoln, Neb. (AP)—Governor R. L. Cochran likes to maintain informality in his executive office and believes the dozen or so pipes he keeps on his desk help clear the air. "I've noticed that a stranger usually glances at the luxurious furnishings and tightens up, but once he spies these disarming pipes he's all right," Cochran explained. The governor's pipe collecting is not a hobby. "My Scotch instinct won't let me throw any of them away," he explains. "One came from London, one from Sweden, and others from many states. Several are gifts." Cochran has about 30, half of them at home. The only pipe he ever lost was the one he prized most. He bought it in England while serving as an artillery captain in the World War and lost it after his return home. He prefers straight stem models, but has one well worn, curved stem cornet.

Vacation Suggestion

One luxury no one should do without, even when "roughing it" on a vacation, is good sleep. Proper rest at night is necessary for the complete enjoyment of long summer days. For this reason, wornout mattresses and bed-springs should never be carted away to summer cottages and camps.

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY: To Kay's dismay, Adam acts queerly after kissing her. Then Julia and Kay catch Sandra and Ivan in an embrace but prevent Jeff from seeing. The party has soured for all of them.

Chapter 16

Death Warrant

WE DROVE to the club. Jeff came in very soon with an air of being quite alone, but with the chaplain at his heels, curiously refused an invitation to join us and went upstairs. Chaplain Henry lingered, softening his own refusal, making manful attempts to prove himself a good fellow in spite of his cloth, and finally taking his departure with ill-concealed relief.

I think it was Gerald who suggested another swim. The lake breeze had died and the night turned sultry. Julia greeted the idea with enthusiasm but turned thumbs down on the officers' beach.

"The barge or else," she said darkly.

"The barge it is," agreed Gerald. Adam stood in the lounge looking detached, aloof, and said that he believed he would turn in.

"Keys are in the car," he said. "You might put it in the garage when you get back."

In vain Julia protested that she needed him for respectability, for a chaperon. Father was tired of tending the children and was not backward about showing it. A compromise was finally reached by which I was to act as chaperon, and the three of us set off once more in Adam's car, with Gerald driving.

"Should we stop by your house for Sandra and Ivan?" he asked innocently.

"In a pig's eye," said Julia elegantly. "That dizzy pair!"

She fell silent, evidently brooding.

The moon was low behind a bank of clouds that promised rain before morning.

"Drive up the beach a way," Julia suggested. "I don't like that barge in the dark. It's—sort of ghostly."

Gerald agreeably parked a hundred yards up the road from the barge, but we could still see it, a dark bulk against the sand, secret and forbidding.

I waited until they were in the water, before swimming out to them. The beach, as far as I could see in either direction, was completely deserted.

It was fun. Julia and Gerald played like seals, diving, rising, slapping the water with hands like flippers.

We were resting on the sand, veiled by the half-darkness, when we heard a car and saw lights approaching from the direction of the post. It stopped on the far side of the barge and a car door slammed.

"Into the water," said Julia, "until we see who it is!"

It was poor advice, but we followed it. We kept close together in the water, watching for an approaching shape along the sand, but there was none.

"Someone on the barge," Julia said presently, and we all saw something move slowly against the gray sky. Whether man or woman, the silhouette was too vague to betray. Not that we thought of that then. I think we all believed it to be a man because of the loneliness, even the ghostliness of the scene. And afterward, when we had discussed it until we were no longer sure of anything, we realized that there might have been more than one person, though there had been only one car door slam and no sound of voices.

Whoever the person or persons, whatever the errand, it was soon done. Perhaps ten minutes after the arrival of the car, we heard the door slammed shut and the prolonged, patient whine of the starter.

Where's Ivan?

I THINK we were all afraid that I, whoever it was would not get away, when finally the motor coughed, started and turned, laboring in the sand.

"Forgot to turn on his ignition," guessed Gerald, but later Julia confided to me that it was Mimi's car.

"It's hard to start—you always have to choke it."

"But what in the world would she be doing out here?" I asked.

"Where does she go on these long evening drives of hers?" Julia countered.

Although she was to deny it, that conversation took place. It was not the sort of thing I would be likely to imagine.

On the way back in the car she announced, rather plaintively, that she had vacated her room for Ivan, and would have to bunk with Sandra.

"There are only four bedrooms in that big house, and Mimi and Dan each have one. Dan snores, or something."

I asked her to stay with me, of course, and she accepted with alacrity.

"Do you want to stop and get anything?" Gerald asked, slowing the car as we neared their quarters. "I have an extra toothbrush."

"And I'll lend you a nightie."

"Swell. Let's not stop, then I'll call up from the club."

Adam was pacing the lighted club veranda. He saw us and hurried down the walk before Gerald could put the car away.

"Where's Ivan?" he asked, peering into the car as if he expected to find him there.

"At home in bed, I trust." Julia told him. "Why this sudden desire for his company?"

Often Wrecks Sleep

Disturbed sleep often is caused by lack of comfort. Many persons are restless because they are either too hot or too cold. In very cold weather a blanket placed under the bottom sheet will do as much to keep the sleeper warm than extra covers on top of him. Discomfort caused by bumpy mattresses or sagging springs is best remedied by replacing the wornout bedding.

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.
By Junius

Questions in a folder issued by a large well-known insurance company:

Have I a practical knowledge of first aid? Could I apply the prone-pressure method of artificial respiration? Do I know how to treat poison ivy, snake bite, burns, cuts, and wounds?

Do I boil water of unknown purity before drinking to avoid chances of typhoid?

I observe the common sense rules of safety in boats and canoes?

My answers are:

I have.

I could.

I do.

But I think I'll just stay home and spend my vacation in bed.

Harold—Are you making any progress in getting acquainted with those fashionable people who have just moved next door to your house?

Gerald—Yes, their cat invited our cat over to a musical last night.

A party of Scots decided to take a trip to London, and when they assembled at the station it was found that they numbered 13. Not wishing to tempt Providence they decided to toss a coin to see who would stay behind. Unfortunately the coin fell beneath the platform and they all missed the train.

Radio Fiend (over garden wall)—Last night we had lovely reception, very loud and clear. It was a broadcast of animal life and we got all of the animals perfectly.

Bored Neighbor (shuffling indoors)—Yes, including my goat.

LONGEVITY: Once upon a time there were two cats.... The first cat had a fit each day and the other one had a fit every other day.... Which one lived the longest?.... The first one, that had a fit each day, of course.... Survival of the "fittest."

Paddy—And who's fishing here, me boy?

Keeper (snapping)—You are! Ain't that your rod stuck in the ground there with the line dangling in the water?

Paddy (looking hurt)—Well, now your Honor, is it fishing I would be in the squire's private water? Sure and I'm sitting here reading, and that's but a little contraption of me own for drowning worms that keep annoying me.

By Joe—It's a cheerful face in everything you do.

The sunshine that you radiate will shine right back to you.

Speak today a word of hope to someone in distress.

When you lift another's load you make your burden less.

Do today a gracious deed, and do it with a smile:

Its little daily acts like these that make your life worth while.

DeLamater, president of the National Guard Association, and Brigadier General Charles H. Grahl, president of the Adjutants General Association.

Method Is Wasteful

Marshall told the committee that the present method of training Guardsmen a few hours each week was "wasteful and long-drawn out."

"I must express myself very carefully here," the general said slowly, "but there are a number of aspects of the regular army which are wasteful at the present time that we cannot correct."

Senator Holman (R-Ore.) asked Marshall if he might not prefer to hold a private session of the committee because much of the information he was submitting "should be retained solely for the benefit of our own government and our own people."

"I believe all this is a matter of great public concern and has to be settled in public," was the general's reply. "The main thing is for the people to understand the situation."

In response to an inquiry by Senator Downey (D-Calif.), Marshall said he thought the present initial rate of pay for an enlisted man—$21 a month—was approximately correct.

He added that if an attempt were made to maintain an army on a basis of too-high pay along with a conscription program "the load would be too much for the government to bear in time of peace" and a "reaction" would set in, causing a reduction in the peace-time strength such as followed the World War.

Principal Provisions Of Training Measure

Washington, July 12—Here are the principal provisions of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill endorsed in most details today by the army high command:

Registration of all male citizens and certain aliens between the ages of 18 and 65 years of age.

Liability for military and naval training and service imposed on all registrants between 21 and 45; liability for training and service in home defense units for those younger or older.

A training period of eight months for each man selected for service, or for a longer period if the United States is at war or if congress declares the national interest is imperiled.

A ten-year term in the enlisted reserve following the training period, with a requirement for annual training of up to one month per year for all reservists.

Choice of men for training made by lot, drawings to be made from age group 21 to 31 until registration and classification of men 31 to 45 has been completed.

Men to be chosen for training so far as possible on this formula: 78 to 87 per cent in age group 21 to 31; 10 to 15 per cent in age group 31 to 38; and 3 to 7 in 38 to 45 group.

Authority vested in president to defer training for men whose employment in other work is found necessary. President may determine number to be called at any time.

force of some 6,000 tanks—several hundred of them huge land battleships—was disclosed today as one major objective in President Roosevelt's new $4,848,171,957 preparedness program.

Persons familiar with the plans behind the dollar marks said that the war department was thinking similarly in aircraft orders during the same period. The eventual purchase of 25,000 warplanes is involved, and delivery on the first planes is expected this fall, the full order to be completed in two years.

Congress sent to the White House the "two-ocean" navy bill, authorizing a $4,600,000,000 construction program to increase the fleet's combat strength by 70 per cent.

Signs multiplied, meanwhile, that the war department was thinking in terms of an army of 1,200,000 troops—the bulk of it to be raised within the next few months by compulsory military training.

The recruiting drive now in progress aims at building up the regular army to 280,000 men by August 30. A 1,200,000 force would include National Guard units, now mustering more than 200,000.

URGES COMPULSORY SERVICE

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, urging compulsory service, declared yesterday:

"We must have an increase in our armed forces and we can not expect to get it on a voluntary basis."

He gave advance notice that the war department was prepared to accept, with minor amendments, the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory training bill now in the hearing stage on Capitol Hill.

From other sources it was indicated the general staff is convinced that 1,000,000 men should be put under arms as soon as possible and trained for any emergency.

In this connection, it was said, Congress eventually will be told that the $4,000,000,000 already appropriated or asked for the army is $2,000,000,000 short of the amount needed to put 1,200,000 fully equipped men in the field.

The newly erected "Chapel of Christ the King" at Camp St. George, DeWitt Lake, will be dedicated Sunday morning at 10 o'clock with Holy Communion celebrated by the Rev. Frank L. Carruthers, rector of St. Georges, Newburgh. The camp will sing a full a cappella service. This promises to be a very beautiful and inspiring service. Visitors are welcome.

Justice Division Asks Separation Of Pullman Work

Philadelphia, July 12 (AP)—The U. S. Department of Justice, in a civil suit against the Pullman companies and 31 individuals, asked the federal district court today to separate the manufacture of sleeping car equipment from its operation.

Charging that contracts between the Pullman companies and railroads are illegal and monopolistic, the government asked for a permanent injunction against such contracts and practices.

Papers for the suit, filed under section 4 of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust act, were entered by special assistant attorney General Fowler Hamilton of Washington.

Hamilton also petitioned the court for appointment of a three-judge court to expedite hearing of the case. Judge John Biggs, Jr., senior member of the third circuit court of appeals, will rule later on the expeditionary petition.

Hamilton emphasized that the government had no thought of seeking dissolution of the Pullman Companies through the suit.

Commodities Show Downward Trend

Grain Drops to Lowest Price Since September

There was some show of strength in early trading Thursday on the Stock Exchange, possibly due to the Administration's announcement of a more favorable attitude toward business in the matter of recognizing the risks assumed by corporations expanding facilities for manufacture of airplanes, munitions and other defense materials. However, the advance did not hold long and most of it was lost as some slight selling developed and the market lapsed again into its current dullness. Volume continued low, although the total of 328,330 shares was best in over a week. The close showed industrials in the Dow-Jones averages with a gain of .09 point for the day, to 121.58 and rails up .08, to 26.07, while utilities were off about the same amount, .09 to 22.75.

Leading the list of 15 most active stocks, Curtiss-Wright closed unchanged at 63% in turnover of 7,700 shares; U. S. Steel gained 1/4 to 51 1/2; Loft was off 1/4 and Packard gained the same amount. Best gain on the active list was made by United Aircraft, up 1/4.

Most commodities showed a downward trend and the Dow-Jones index lost 0.35 for the day, closing at 51.21. Weather news and higher crop estimates depressed wheat values and the gain touched the lowest price since last September, with losses of 1 1/2 cents a bushel. July wheat closing at 73 1/4 cents a bushel. Cotton was irregular in quiet trading and closed three points lower to six higher. Domestic sugar contracts closed unchanged to two points higher. Small and insignificant advances were made by rubber, lard, cottonseed oil and non-ferrous metals.

Speculative rails featured a generally quiet bond market. Threat of a German invasion of Ireland caused Irish Free State 5s to lose five points to a new low of around 50.

American Car & Foundry is low bidder on a contract for tanks for the U. S. Government, amount involved being around $11,000,000. Company on July 10 had unfilled orders totaling $23,590,756, stockholders were told.

The War Department is asking plane manufacturers to start work immediately on planes for defense purposes instead of waiting for Congress to enact new tax legislation. Would save delay of two months or more in getting the program under way.

New York Central showed improvement in income for May, net being $78,595, after taxes and charges, compared with net loss of $1,465,904 in May last year. For the first five months of this year net loss was $1,381,079 against loss in the 1939 period of $8,787,191. The Erie road had net loss of $155,949 in May vs. loss of $563,786 in 1939 year and for the five months loss of $1,664,476 against loss of $2,351,204 in the first five months of last year.

Affected by the holiday car-loadings for the week ended July 6 dropped to 636,901 cars, a more than seasonal decline.

Hotel business in New York city for June showed a decrease of 11 per cent as compared with June last year. Lack of steamship travel in and out of the port of New York is given as the reason for the decrease.

Preaches Cheer and Courage To Persons With One Limb

her "into the fraternity of the wooden leg."

"She wrote back immediately and proposed that we form such an organization," Campbell says. "We sent out 12,000 circulars to persons with artificial limbs and invited them to join."

Several hundred requests for memberships came right back and the society now is a going concern. It publishes a monthly magazine, "Courage," which hands out advice, cheer and encouragement to people with only one leg.

Initiation is Terrible

"Believe me, state of mind is everything when you're getting used to one of the things," says Campbell, talking "wooden leg" philosophy.

"The initiation you go through in acquiring your artificial limb is terrible. It should be a refining process. You should emerge a wiser, kinder, gentler fellow, more sympathetic with your fellow men."

A purpose of the fraternity is to urge state or national aid in purchasing artificial appliances for needy, crippled persons. Later it expects to organize an engineering and mechanical board assigned to produce more comfortable "models" of artificial limbs.

Bettina Lamb Sauce

1/4 cup finely chopped fresh mint

2 tablespoons lemon juice

2 tablespoons orange juice

1 tablespoon confectioner's sugar

Mix ingredients, keep on back of stove to warm up, for 20 minutes, or so.

Corn Stuffed Peppers

6 green peppers

1 cup cooked corn (or grated fresh)

2 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs

1 egg yolk

1/4 teaspoon minced onions

2 tablespoons butter

1/8 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon paprika

Wash peppers, discard seeds and pulp and stuff with mixed ingredients.

Arrange, upright, in a small pan, and 1/4 inch water and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Baste twice.

Answer: At first thought, I would have said the long veil with the long train would have made you look taller. But on second thought, I can see that with the top and narrowness through the skirt might add an effect of greater length than the wider outline made by a veil all the way down. When you try on your dress can't you try veils of different length at the same time?

Modes of the Moment

Herzog's Guidepost

T better living

WHEN the eldest son mounted a horse and rode to the nearest log cabin to "borrow" an ember, he returned with the ember or live coal carefully protected in an earthen jar. Those were pioneer days, before the invention of commercial phosphorous friction matches in 1833. The precious ember in the earthen jar, making possible heat, light and cooking, represented the chiefmost comfort.

Today the best of modern comforts and conveniences are found at the "general" store

Remember when women were afraid of oil stoves?

But today—let's examine one of the beautiful Perfection high-power cabinet ranges at Herzog's. Simple, pleasing lines! Easy-to-clean all porcelain enamel finish! The five high-power burners are easy to light, easy to control. The roomy "Live-Heat" oven with porcelain enamel lining is elbow-high, thereby saving backaches.

You'll like the cream-white and black color combination, the large cooking top with full grates, and extra space over the concealed two-gallon removable reservoir. In fact, it's your heart's desire! And it's only one of a series of excellent buys in oil ranges, gasoline stoves and hotplates.

Let's look upstairs, downstairs, all around the store. There's something for everyone at the "general" store.

For the Farmer's Wife

Pumps may be pumps, but it's nice to have an up-to-date one in your kitchen! Here's the No. 2 Red Jacket pitcher pump. Compact, streamlined and improved—so you get extra good service as well as "looks." All for only $1.98, too!

Clubs and boarding houses, please note: Taper tumblers at 33 cents a dozen and straight glasses at 50 cents, are mighty good buys—but considering that they have a special rolled edge which prevents chipping—be sure to stock up!

Memo to office "bosses"

You can enjoy all the advantages of Frigidaire's remarkable new water cooler at a cost that is less than ice. In fact, you may rent a Frigidaire water cooler this year at only $4.00 a month! Choose pressure, bottle or bubbler types, in white or bronze Duco finish. Look at them in the Appliance Dept. on second floor.

Beauty salons and other places of business may learn all about the possibilities of economically air-conditioning their quarters with the Air Pilot Portable Room Ventilator. (Also in the Appliance Dept. on second floor.)

Once installed, it functions year-round in providing ventilation, air cleaning, air circulation, and noise elimination. Right now you want it for cooling and dehumidification.

It also keeps mosquitoes out!

It's being installed in bed-rooms, professional offices, restaurants, etc.

We're supplying the hot weather call for fans with the amazing rubber-bladed Samson Safe-Flex—so safe and noiseless, so smooth, steady and powerful! They're attractive, molded blades which blend with the streamlined base. People who plan to travel this summer, expect to take one along. Small size is $3.95.

General Drum's View of Universal Military Service

Governors Island, N. Y., July 12.—In response to numerous inquiries regarding his views on universal military service, Lieut. General Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the Second Corps Area and the 1st Army, which concentrates next month in the Plattsburgh-Watertown area for large scale maneuvers, stated today that "We are facing a duty we are asked to discharge to the nation—the duty of deciding how we shall apply promptly and efficiently the constitutional and democratic principles that we, as citizens, are obligated to defend the democratic institutions we are hand in hand, he said.

General Drum in his statement calls attention to the experience of the nation on its entry into the World War where the problem had to be faced of raising in a short time the largest army the nation had ever gathered together.

Since those days of nearly a quarter of a century ago the machinery of war has introduced new requirements which armed forces must master if they are to be successful in combat. General Drum favored the proposal of universal military service for men in the age group of 21 to 45 for brief period of military service. This plan, he said, would provide an efficient method for rapidly acquiring large groups of physically fit men who could receive preliminary military instruction during the period required for American industry to produce essential modern equipment for their use. The production of equipment and the training of man power must go hand in hand, he said.

In closing General Drum said that the nation was facing urgent needs today and that "we must make sacrifices if we are to be successful in accomplishing national security."

Shokan, July 11—Joseph Naughton of Mt. Vernon called on friends in Shokan Monday. Mr. Naughton, who is a former New York city police lieutenant, plans to come here later on in July for a vacation stay.

Frank Myers, well known Kingston plumber, was a cobbler in the village last Sunday.

Those who have an idea that wheat cannot be grown successfully on our hill farms should view the flourishing piece of this grain on the Granville Bush place near Winchell's Falls.

A marriage in the neighboring village of West Hurley on Thursday, July 12, 1860, was that of Clarissa Elting to William A. Sagendorf, both of South Woodstock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Horace Wood, and witnesses to the nuptials were Margaret Elting and William C. Shultz.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Vandenberg of Mt. Vernon are still at their place on the mountain road. The Vandenbergers are somewhat inconvenienced by failure of their water supply system, due to damage by freezing last winter.

Francis Cully, local war veteran, is engaged on a redecorating job at Mrs. Emily Hanson's residence.

Mrs. Bert Jones, well known Kingston woman who formerly resided at Temple's Pond, was a caller in this section last Sunday.

Robert Adsit, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adsit, has gone to a Boy Scout camp.

"Bar" Cage

Frankfort, Ind.—Instead of being "in the dog house," it's "in the bear cage" now.

The cage that once housed a bear in a Frankfort park has been refurbished and installed in the basement of the new police headquarters—for use as a cell.

Aquatic Cowboy

Denver—A rodeo steer escaped from a truck and plunged into Sloan's Lake. A cowboy rode a bucking motorboat in pursuit. But it took four more cowboys to rope the brahma and five police squad cars to pull it to shore.

Stork Trapped

Boise, Idaho—The stork got caught in an elevator, so Thomas Truman Dodds was born in the lift.

A jammed door trapped Mr. and Mrs. Truman Dodds and a nurse in the elevator in a Boise hospital and locked out the obstetrician.

Cold Comfort

Sioux City, Ia.—Mrs. Blanche Fredette, 38, is learning the good and bad things about ice.

A 50-pound piece of ice slipped out of her hands and injured one of her feet. Ironically enough, a doctor told her to keep the injured foot surrounded by—yes, ice—to help the bruise heal.

Peanut Pitfall

Columbus, Neb.—A business man here has solved the problem caused by bait-stealing mice.

To foil craft rodents that sneaked off with meat and cheese, he glued a peanut to each trap.

He says the gobblers are fatal lure.

French Are at War

Basel (AP)—Of the last 600 years of France's history, 371 have been war years. A Swiss newspaper published the following table: 14th century—43 war years, including such battles as Courtrai, Crecy and Poitiers. 15th—71 war years, including Azincourt, Castillon, Montereil and Grinigate. 16th—85 war years (33 civil wars and 27 big battles, including Pavia and St. Quentin). 17th—69 war years (17 civil wars, 39 major battles). 18th—58 war years (7 civil wars, 93 battles). 19th—45 war years (12 civil wars, 52 battles). In the 20th century the French have already had the first World war, the Moroccan campaign, the second World war.

Smoked, sugar-cured ham, boiled in cider, was one of George Washington's favorite dishes.

Kuntz and Bob Hoe Ahead of Field in State Junior Golf

Young College Students Are Big Threat in Tourney on Course
at Scarborough

Scarborough-on-Hudson, N. Y., July 12 (AP)—When Bill Kuntz and Bob Hoe go to school, they're a long way apart. Right now, however, they're being ranked right alongside each other—as the two leading threats in the state junior golf championship tournament.

Kuntz, who hails from nearby Larchmont, has a Yale address when it's "open" season in college. At the same time, Hoe leaves Poughkeepsie for Pomona, in California. Both are sophomores.

School is out now, but as the eight survivors head into the quarter-finals today, just about every one was agreed the two lads had done right well in giving golf lessons through the tourney's first rounds.

Kuntz explained carefully and successfully with his clubs to two opponents yesterday that no match is over until the last putt hits the can. The 19-year old came from behind twice over the Sleepy Hollow layout, winning one match in 21 holes and the other on the 18th green.

Hoe, meantime, went along in each match to the 17th green before putting on the crusher. He was runner-up in this tournament last year.

Hoe heads a contingent of three up-state survivors from among the group of 16 who qualified on Wednesday. With the medalist, Gordon Claus, of Rochester, eliminated in the second round, this trio included Hoe and Grant Birkenhead of Poughkeepsie and Pete Beaudry of Syracuse, who came in with a pair of impressive victories yesterday. The Westchester delegation surviving was made up of Kuntz and Joseph Mendel of Larchmont, Douglas Ford of Rye and Charles F. Hazelwood, Jr., of Scarsdale. Lone metropolitan New York city survivor was Feliz Zaremba of Plandome, Long Island.

Al Singer's Hopes

(By the Associated Press)

If you're looking for contrasts, how about the gloom along the Gowanus in Brooklyn and the frivolity along Fountain Square in Cincinnati?

Today the Rhinelander burghers are making overtures toward the ticket windows marked "advance sale—World Series" out in Ohio, while the mourners march on Flatbush avenue, for the handwriting on the wall looks suspiciously like the Reds are in a fair way to repeat their 1939 pennant drive.

Not that last night's 6-5 victory over the Dodgers automatically gives them the championship—but it shows once again that the Reds always seem to be ready when the chips are down.

Brooklyn, fired up by a double loss to the Bees before the All-Star holiday and determined to get back on top and stay there, shot the works in an attempt to win—but the mastery of Bucky Walters was not to be denied. His five hit performance gave the Reds a vital edge in the Cincinnati-Brooklyn seasonal series—7 games to 6.

Reds in Front

That puts the Reds out front by a game and a half and made the third place Giants, who beat St. Louis, 8-6 in an 11-inning struggle just that much closer to the Dodgers. The "Jints" won on two hits, a walk and two errors by "Cousin" Joe Oringo, good for 18th place.

In the other National League doings, the Boston Bees and the Chicago Cubs split a double bill. Sebastian Sisti's long fly in the 10th scored Eddie Miller for a 2-1 nightcap Bee victory after Bill Nicholson's three run homer helped the Cubs win the first game, 8-2.

The Philadelphia-Pittsburgh game was postponed by rain.

Biggest news in the American League was Red Rolfe's eyewash and its wonderous cure. The red-head has been bothered with a minor eye ailment. He found a new prescription yesterday—and promptly belted out two triples and a homer to pace the Yanks to a 6-4 win over the St. Louis Browns, as the world champs opened a long home stand.

The see-saw American League first-place race kept up its dizzy doings. The Cleveland Indians, on home runs by Ben Chapman, Lou Boudreau and Ken Keltner, beat the Athletics 8-5 and went into the top spot. Young Sid Hudson of the Washington Senators scattered nine hits to down the Detroit Tigers, 7-3 and drop them from the loop lead.

Bobby Doerr, Boston second sacker "celebrated" his being dropped to seventh place in the batting order by belting a 13th inning home run to give the Red Sox a 3-2 decision over the Chicago White Sox in the day's longest duel.

And it will be just two months short of 10 years since that lightweight champ made his first start after winning the title against the ranking welterweight and was flattened like the straw hat you put on the seat next to you in the commuters' train. From there, that lightweight went on to lose the 135-pound crown in his first defense.

The citizen in question was Al Singer—remember? He took the title from old Sammy Mandell July 17, 1930. Two months later, Baby-Face Jimmy McLarnin, generally regarded as the "uncrowned king" of the welters, put the zing on Singer in three rounds. And two months after that, Tony Canzoneri dusted him off the throne with a couple of punches.

Clinton's Defeat Fair Street by 4-2

Don Weeks Is the Winner Against Clayton

Although allowing a total of 10 hits, Don Weeks, ace softball hurler, pitched his Clinton Avenue club to an important 4 to 2 victory over Fair Street Wednesday night at Hasbrouck Park.

The victory gives the Clintons undisputed lead in the Federation League.

Fair Street scored two runs in the first when Harold Clayton and Bill Newkirk, Jr., crossed the pay-off plate on an error when Newkirk, Sr., belted a single. Again in the second and fourth Fair Street was in scoring position but couldn't rock Weeks for any more markers.

Total of $2,481,396 Made Since April 15

Albany, N. Y., July 12 (AP)—Pari-mutuel betting on horse races, inaugurated April 15 in New York, has paid the state $2,481,396 in taxes.

The amount included $243,362 collected on July 1 to 6 racing at Empire City track, where the horses are now running. The state receives five per cent of the total wagered, plus brokerage.

State tax commission reports showed an average $51.02 bet for each of 810,284 persons, who wagered a total of $41,343,722 during spring meetings at the Jamaica, Belmont Park and Aqueduct tracks.

Payments to the state included $901,066 from Belmont, $700,966 from Jamaica and $376,001 from Aqueduct.

Seventy per cent of the estimated 2,600,000 crippled persons in the United States above the age of 15 are males.

Luigi Bocelli Will Run Mile Event In July 21 Meet

Italian Champion Defeated Glenn Cunningham in 1932 in California: Tickets Selling

Another outstanding track star, Luigi Bocelli, Italian Olympic distance champion who defeated Glenn Cunningham in the Olympics at Los Angeles in 1932, was another entrant in the ever-growing list of cinder track athletes who will appear at municipal stadium, July 21 in the second annual track and field carnival.

The ace miler is now carrying the banner of the famous New York A. C. club. All track circles have tabbed him as a colorful runner. He'll compete against a field of such stars as Wayne and Blaine Rideout, Harlan Woods of the Boston A. A., Eddie Powers of the University of Southern California, who is to run for the Winged Foot A. C., Johnny Chamios of the Lenox Hill A. A., and several other imposing stars.

Needed Urging

After much urging by Moquet, famous French performer, Luigi Bocelli finally decided to run against the great Glenn Cunningham in 1932 and wound up with an enviable victory. It was the 1500 meter event at the Olympics that Luigi paced Glenn to the finishing tape.

John McHugh, famous Olympic starter, will be in Kingston Sunday, July 21, in the capacity as official starter. McHugh was in Kingston last year, too, and gave the meet a nationally known stand. Runners who will compete in the meet this year are thankful for McHugh's presence as he is looked upon as an equal to baseball's Bill Klem, a fine judge and a square one.

Tickets for the big track meet are selling at a fast rate to date. One of the largest turnouts is expected to pass through the turnstiles July 21 for this event. In connection with the "Booster" tickets, Chairman Bill Roedell announced that it is important for all those who have these tickets to make returns in order that the names may be included in the official program.

Cornell Park Is Tops at Annual City Olympics

Cornell Park took the top honors yesterday at the municipal stadium where members of the various park playgrounds gathered for the city olympics. As the final races were being run, a shower made it necessary to call a short recess, but as soon as the rain had subsided the children were back on the track for the windup. In the upper left are the three teams to place in the wheelbarrow race. On their hands, left to right, are: Joseph Diamond, Block Park, first place; George Long, Hasbrouck Park, second place, and John Brown, Hasbrouck Park, third place. Standing left to right, are: Arthur Hansen, John Keller and Joseph McCordle. Below this is the finish in the girls' three-legged race. They are left to right: J. O'Neil and S. Lucas, of Cornell Park, first; M. Palen and J. Kelly, of Forsyth Park second and J. Marnell and J. Buchholz of Forsyth Park in third place. On the right we find Don Murphy of Forsyth Park as he crossed the line to take first place for Forsyth Park in the 880 yard run. On the bottom left is Bert Gildersleeve who made an excellent jump of 18 feet 6 inches to take first place in the broad jump for Forsyth Park. Rosemarie Amato, lower right, holds the rolling pin that she threw to a record of 60 feet to capture the first place honors for Block Park.

Following is the complete summary:

Sylvia Grossinger Gets Annulment of Marriage

Sylvia Grossinger of 249 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, has been granted an annulment of her marriage to Abe Grossinger of Keweenaw by Justice Pierce H. Russell on the grounds of fraud and misrepresentation by the defendant prior to marriage. Alfred Rice appeared as attorney for plaintiff and the action tried at special term on June 7 was not defended.

The interlocutory decree has been granted after testimony before the Supreme Court. The parties were married by a justice of the peace in the town of Rochester on November 12, 1938, and separated later by a religious ceremony. Plaintiff and defendant once before separated.

State Capitol Visitors Are Watched as Result Of Anonymous Threat

Albany, N. Y., July 12 (AP)—Visitors to New York's capitol underwent searching scrutiny today by guards on the alert after an anonymous threat to bomb the seat of the state government.

State and city police were at all entrances to the building, closed to all but accredited persons last night for the first time since the World War.

Door guards and plain clothes men wandering the corridors watched particularly for carriers of packages and questioned carefully any who sought to loiter.

While officials emphasized their belief the threat was a "hoax," Governor Lehman said "we naturally are taking all precautions."

An anonymous postcard received yesterday at the Albany postoffice asserted the bomb would be exploded in the capitol today.

Dr. Bradley H. Kirschberg, director of the State Police scientific laboratory, expressed the opinion the card was "the work of a mischievous child."

clude 12 ministers. Some of them will function in Paris if the Germans approve.

(Among Frenchmen in Switzerland it was reported the impression was growing that under the new system, with Weygand regarded as a Royalist sympathizer, France was closer to return of a monarchy than any time since 1875. The Duke of Guise, as head of the House of Orleans, and his son, the Count of Paris, are the actual pretenders to the throne. They now are in Spanish Morocco.)

Paul Baudoin, foreign minister in the last cabinet of the republic, told an Associated Press correspondent that a "family vote" was being considered.

Each head of a family would have one vote for himself, one for his wife and one for each child, whereas a bachelor would have a single vote.

Baudoin declared the coming governmental changes tend more toward "the American system" than any other and that "there will be no Nazi or Fascist salute, no brown or black shirts."

Text of Three Acts

The text of the three "constitutional acts," almost royal in tone, which marked the end of the republic, follows:

The First Act

"We, Philippe Petain, marshal of France, in view of the constitutional law of July 10, 1940, assume the functions of chief of the French state. In consequence, we decree that article two of the constitutional law of February 25, 1875, is abrogated."

The Second Act

"Article 1: The chief of the French state has full governmental power to name and revoke ministers and secretaries of the state who are responsible only to him.

"First, he exercises legislative power in the cabinet until formation of new assemblies and, second, after formation, in cases of foreign tension and of serious internal crisis, under his decision alone and in the same form. Under the same circumstances he can decree measures of a budgetary and fiscal order.

"Third, he promulgates laws and assures their execution.

"Fourth, he names persons to all civil and military posts for which the law provides no other means of appointment.

"Fifth, he disposes of armed forces.

"Sixth, he wields the right of pardon and amnesty.

"Seventh, envoys and ambassadors of foreign powers are accredited to him. He negotiates and ratifies all treaties.

"Eighth, he can declare a state of siege over one or many parts of the territory.

Cannot Declare War

"He cannot declare war without a previous agreement of the newly created legislature.

"Article 2: All dispositions of the constitutional law of February 25, 1875, and of July 16, 1875, incompatible with the present act are abrogated."

Third Act

"Article 1: The Senate and the Chamber of Deputies will subsist until the assemblies provided for by the constitutional law of July 10, 1940, are formed.

"Article 2: The Senate and the Chamber of Deputies are adjourned until further notice. They may henceforth meet only when convoked by the chief of state.

"Article 3: The first article of the constitutional law of July 16, 1875, is abrogated."

the future the size of delegations be absolutely limited to two delegates from each congressional district and four at-large with no delegate-at-large to be allowed more than half a vote again.

St. Peter's tomb was moved early in the Christian era to a vault on the Appian Way where it lay for a time with that of St. Paul.

The body later was restored to its former resting place and Constantine the Great had a basilica erected over the grave at the foot of Vatican Hill. This was replaced by the present church of St. Peter in the sixteenth century.

A Vatican informant said the Pope decided to order a search for the original tomb after traces of Constantine's church were found in work under St. Peter's.

"Article 2: The Senate and the Chamber of Deputies are adjourned until further notice. They may henceforth meet only when convoked by the chief of state.

"Article 3: The first article of the constitutional law of July 16, 1875, is abrogated."

Weir Loses First Round in Assault Upon Wagner Act

NLRB Orders Concern to End Independent Unions, Reinstate 17 Employees

Pittsburgh, July 12 (AP)—The $125,000 Weirton (W. Va.) Steel Company, headed by Ernest T. Weir, New Deal fan who successfully battled the NRA, today lost the first round in a four-year fight against the Wagner Labor Act, which Weir has opposed as "government interference in business."

Issuing a preliminary decision in its longest and costliest case, the National Labor Relations Board ordered the concern to establish independent "company unions" at plants in Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, O. Seventeen of 300 employees who claimed they were dismissed for "outside" union activity were ordered reinstated with back pay.

The company was also directed to "cease physical assaults on union employees or inciting others to such action." The decision said that "special watchmen" employed by the company "roamed the streets, trailed CIO sympathizers and assaulted SWOC organizers. The CIO called the watchmen a "hatchet gang."

Dismisses Petition

The board dismissed, however, a petition by the CIO steel workers organizing committee seeking recognition as bargaining agent for the 12,000 employees of the company, main unit of the National Steel Corporation, of which Weir is chairman. The board held the SWOC had not established a majority among the employees.

The four-year legal battle—enlivened by frequent and bitter disputes among attorneys—started in 1936 after the company mechanized its tin plate mills and discharged 300 employees.

The SWOC filed charges with the NLRB and the resulting hearings in three states—West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania—lasted 18 months, about 700 witnesses being heard. Unofficial estimates placed total cost of the case at more than $1,000,000.

The NLRB examiner, Edward Grandison Smith, quit after verbal clashes with company counsel, Clyde Armstrong, who was later barred from the hearings. Company employees hung Smith in effigy.

Weir won a victory over the NRA in 1935 when the U. S. district court at Wilmington, Del., upheld his contention that the government could not supervise an election to determine the bargaining agent for his employees.
